In machine vision, calibration is used to convert dimensions in the image coordinate plane to world coordinate [?].

References